About Rowing Australia

Rowing is one of the cornerstone Olympic sports and Rowing Australia enjoys the benefits of having close working relationships with the Australian Sports Commission, Australian Olympic Committee, Australian Institute of Sport and the network of State and Territory Institutes of Sport.

Rowing Australia and the Australian Institute of Sport have recently restructured their high performance rowing programs to optimise international performances and results. To achieve this objective, and to provide a united national direction for high performance rowing in Australia, the National Rowing Centre of Excellence (NRCE) was formed as a joint venture that incorporates the entirety of Rowing Australia's High Performance Program and the AIS Residential Scholarship and National Camps Programs.

On the water, Australian rowing has a long and proud history of success and wins multiple medals at most major international competitions.

At the 2003 FISA World Championships in Milan, Australia won six medals and qualified 12 boats (out of a possible 14) to compete at the Athens Olympics in 2004. The only other country to equal this achievement was Germany.

At the 2004 Olympic Games, Australia won one gold medal, one silver medal and two bronze medals. Australia finished as the top men's nation at the Games, being the only country to win three medals in men's events. In the overall tally, Australia was one of only four nations to win four medals. Following the 2004 Olympic Games and World Championships, Australia was ranked as the 3rd leading rowing nation in the world.

In 2005, Australia won six medals at the FISA World Championships in Gifu, and again finished near the top of the medal table.

In 2006, following another successful international season, with two crews winning at the World Championships, Australia finished the year as the number one nation in the world in Olympic boat classes.

At the 2007 World Championships, Australia won a total of seven medals, including three gold. This performance paved the way for Australia to qualify all 14 boats for the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, only the second occasion a nation has done this in Olympic rowing history. In Beijing, Australia won two gold medals and one silver medal to rank second on the final medal table.

Rowing Australia is the national governing body for the sport of rowing. Formed in 1925, it is the only organisation recognised by the Federation Internationale des Societies d'Aviron (FISA), the Australian Sports Commission (ASC) and the Australian Olympic Committee (AOC) to conduct rowing activities in and on behalf of Australia.

Rowing Australia and its affiliates represent in excess of 15,000 active members ranging from young rowers at school through to those at universities and in the wider community right through to veterans rowing. Rowing Australia member associations operate in seven States with over 185 schools and 156 clubs offering rowing programs.
